A cozy chick

It is morning in one of the coldest places on Earth—Antarctica.

A little emperor penguin chick has just woken up, but she does not feel cold.

She is snuggled under her father's warm tummy!

All about emperor penguins

There are many types of penguins.

Emperor penguins are the largest.

They are good swimmers that live in Antarctica's cold ocean waters.

Penguin Chicks

Snuggled under its father's tummy and sitting on his feet, an emperor penguin chick stays nice and warm. Penguin parents take extra special care of their chicks. They have to, because they live in the coldest place on Earth—Antarctica. Look inside to discover how penguin chicks find all the things they need to survive in their bitter cold world as they get ready to become grown-up penguins.
